Today's main entrée: college and career readiness

Oliver Middle School students are being served up college and career readiness for lunch in the form of first-hand accounts from presenters in a diverse assortment of career fields. The school's Family and Community Connections Committee launched a new initiative this year called College and Career Lunch Bunches. In addition to promoting college and career readiness, the goal of the lunch bunches is to grow community engagement.

OMS students sign up for lunch presentations of interest, then seven students from each team are selected to attend. The presenter speaks with one class during each grade level's lunch period. Students get their lunch and report to the classroom, where they eat while learning the ins and outs of a specific career, the education required and ask any questions they may have.

The series kicked off on Nov. 26 with a visit from Brockport Police Lt. Stephen Mesiti, who spoke with students about his role in keeping the community safe. Legislator Mike Rockow led the next lunch on Dec. 5 with a focus on his career as a construction material salesman and politician.

Longtime local basketball coach and business owner Charlie Hage visited OMS on Dec. 6, where he discussed the path that led him to his current role as owner of Brockport

Carpet. Hage stressed the meaning of perseverance by defining "no" as "next opportunity" and "fail" as "first attempt in learning." Hage shared tips to success, but ultimately encouraged students to love what they do in whatever field they choose.

Chris Trapasso, NFL draft expert for CBS Sports and freelance columnist for the Buffalo News, led the following lunch bunch on Dec. 17. The most common question students asked: "Have you met the Buffalo Bills players?" They loved hearing about Trapasso's interactions with the Bills, but were also intrigued to hear how skills he learned in school such as punctuation and grammar have been vital in his career.

"I learned that you can get paid money for doing a job that is fun and you can do it in your own free time," said Mary Kingsley, OMS seventh-grader.

The December lunch bunches wrapped up with a visit from Sue Feuerherm, an office manager and accountant for Flower City Habitat for Humanity. Feuerherm spoke with students about the vast array of fields existing at Habitat for Humanity, including family services, accounting, human resources, development and marketing, in addition to construction and trades that are required when building new houses.

Family and Community Connections Committee member and OMS science teacher Amy Phillips said the initiative is off to an incredible start.

"The Family and Community Connections Committee is so excited to be offering the College and Career Lunch Bunches," said Phillips. "We believe it is never too early to be exposing students to potential careers. The students have seemed to really enjoy the variety of lunch bunches offered!"

Organizers hope that every Oliver Middle School student will attend at least one College and Career Lunch Bunch by the end of the year.

Dear Neighbors, Friends and Community Members,

Lesli C. Myers, Ed.D.

It is incredible that we have reached the halfway point of the school year. Our students have made remarkable progress with achievements in academics, athletics, performing arts and community service.

On Jan. 7, 36 new members were inducted into the Brockport High School Chapter of the National Honor Society for their demonstrated excellence in the areas of scholarship, leadership, service and character. These students excel inside and outside the walls of the classroom. Congratulations to our new inductees – your hard work and perseverance is commendable!

Our staff members have also spent the first half of the year making tremendous strides in engaging and empowering students to achieve excellence as learners and citizens. On Jan. 9, Oliver Middle School welcomed 29 educators from 12 different school districts and a parochial school to showcase our instructional practices through learning walks. Learning walks allow participants to witness first-hand the innovative curriculum and educational experiences that students receive at the middle school. Attendees left reinvigorated and excited to implement our strategies into their own districts. Their enthusiasm about the great work occurring in our schools is a true testament to the high caliber of staff we have in our district.

Our classified staff have also demonstrated immense dedication throughout the first half of the year, particularly following last month's snow storm. We are fortunate to have amazing buildings and grounds staff, transportation employees and security personnel who worked tirelessly to clear our campus and ensure a safe return for students following the snow and cold during the holiday weekend. Thank you for all your efforts – you are appreciated!

Reflecting on the first half of the year, we are reminded of the wonderful community partnerships we have that allow us to focus on high-quality education. Our partnerships with local law enforcement are vital to the safety of students and staff. Throughout the months, the Brockport Police Department and Monroe County Sheriff's Office have maintained a presence on campus, thus creating relationships with students and staff and assisting when difficult situations arise. Further, our partnership with The College at Brockport continues to grow through multiple facets such as the institution of the Diversity Certification Program. Our continuous collaboration with community partners is essential to the success of our district.

Looking ahead to the second half of the year, may we view it through the lens of opportunity. It is an opportunity to explore new things, push the boundaries and remember our "why."

Yours in Education,

Lesli C. Myers-Small, Ed.D.

New law requires senior citizens to verify income for Enhanced STAR tax rebate

A new law designed to combat fraud requires senior citizens to verify their income to remain in the state's Enhanced STAR tax rebate program.

Property owners age 65 and over who are applying or reapplying to receive the Enhanced STAR exemption in 2019 must enroll in the Income Verification Program. Previously, enrolling in the Income Verification Program was optional; however, a new law that went into effect Jan. 1, 2019 made enrollment mandatory. Forms are available on the New York State Department of Taxation and Finance's website.

The Enhanced STAR tax rebate program refunds a portion of school property taxes on senior citizens' primary residences if they are 65 or over and fall under the income cap ($86,300 for the 2019-20 school year).

If you have questions regarding the new law or the STAR program, contact your local tax assessor's office.

What language do computers speak?

Ask any Ginther kindergartener or first-grader what language computers speak and they will likely tell you they speak computer code. In recognition of Computer Science Education Week held Dec. 3 – 9, Ginther students practiced computer coding during library. Both grade levels used Tynker, a program that incorporates visual code blocks to represent real programming concepts. Students quickly picked up the concept and enjoyed completing sequences and advancing to higher levels.

BCSD receives universal pre-kindergarten grant for 2019-20

The Brockport Central School District will again offer a grant-funded universal pre-kindergarten (UPK) program. The program, with a strong focus on early learning, will start in September and follow the school calendar. Children will attend school five days a week for two and a half hours a day during morning or afternoon sessions. Since the grant requires a collaborative effort between BCSD and area childhood education agencies, some children will attend private schools, in addition to the majority of students who attend Brockport's Ginther School. All sites will use the curriculum developed by the UPK Advisory Board and will be taught by a certified teacher.

To be eligible for the UPK program, children must be 4 years old by Dec. 1, 2019 and be a Brockport Central School District resident. Families are responsible for making their own transportation arrangements, as transportation is not part of the New York State Education Department grant.

If your child is not yet registered to receive UPK-related mailings and should be, please call the Registrar's Office at 637-1857. Applications will be mailed to all eligible families.

Frequently asked questions about the program may be found on the Ginther School's website under "Academics." You may also call 637-1816 for additional information.

National Honor Society inducts 36 new BHS members

The Brockport High School Chapter of the National Honor Society formally welcomed 36 new members during an induction ceremony held at the high school on Jan. 7. The National Honor Society is the nation's premier organization established to recognize outstanding high school students who have demonstrated excellence in the areas of scholarship, service, leadership and character.

The ceremony began with greetings from BHS Principal Dr. Brian Weller, followed by opening comments from NHS advisers Patricia Arnold and Rebecca Barrett. This year's keynote speaker was Dr. Gina Cuyler, an internal medicine physician who shared her story of overcoming adversity to follow her dream of becoming a physician. She inspired students with her perseverance and encouraged them to make their dreams a reality.

Following speeches from current NHS officers about each of the four pillars in which the society is built, inductees were presented with certificates. The evening concluded with a celebratory reception in the high school foyer for students and their families.

School HIGHLIGHTS

The best way to spread holiday cheer is singing loud for all to hear

Winter students exuded joy as they clapped and sang along to familiar songs performed by the Brockport High School Band during an assembly in the high school auditorium on Dec. 21. Kindergarten and first-grade students were inspired and thrilled by their older peers who played a variety of holiday favorites including “I Want a Hippopotamus for Christmas” and “All I want for Christmas is my Two Front Teeth.” A visit from Santa brought nearly the whole auditorium to their feet in delight as he passed out high fives and took a turn conducting the band. Thank you to the BHS Band for sharing the gift of music to all three elementary schools in advance of holiday recess!

Barclay students take the stage

Four third-grade classes spent weeks preparing for a special performance of Barclay Kids Rock on Dec. 3. Each semester Barclay music teacher Katelyn Marasco works with four classes to hone their singing voices for a community performance. Each concert features three to four songs that send positive messages through group and individual vocal performances. The group pictured below is comprised of students from the classes of Maren Aldrich, Ashleigh Grant, Michelle Huck and Tara Jackson. Kudos to all students for an incredible performance!

Eighth-graders prep for high school

Future freshmen got a taste of high school during visits from BHS students and staff on Jan. 3. In an effort to ease anxiety that eighth-graders may have about their transition to high school, representatives from the high school visited OMS to share exciting class offerings and opportunities that lie ahead. Eighth-graders learned about classes offered in each subject area, along with academic support opportunities that are available in the high school. OMS students also had the opportunity to ask questions about life in high school.

Challenge inspires kindness at Hill

Random acts of kindness took over the Hill School throughout the month of December in celebration of the school's second annual Kindness Challenge. Each class received a bingo board filled with 24 suggested activities intended to spread kindness. Students contributed their time and talent in various ways such as making cards for residents of a local nursing home, smiling at everyone they passed in the hallways and spending the day saying only nice things about others. Students learned that spreading kindness brings joy to all parties involved. Classes that completed their kindness bingo boards were treated to cookies and cocoa, which turned out to be the majority of the school. Great job, Hill students!

Sophomores learn about career and technical education

Brockport High School sophomores had an opportunity to learn about 19 different programs offered through the Monroe 2-Orleans BOCES Career and Technical Education program. On Dec. 7, 94 BHS tenth-graders visited WEMOCO where they saw classes ranging from culinary arts to automotive technology to certified nurse assisting. Current BHS WEMOCO students led many of the tours. The tour occurs annually to give students an inside look at opportunities available outside Brockport High School.

Congratulations to Brockport's Best!

A group of individuals was recognized as Brockport's Best during the board of education meeting on Dec. 4 for their contributions to the Foodlink Mobile Pantry at Brockport High School. BHS teacher Mike Zale and his wife Kristen were acknowledged for their efforts in bringing the mobile pantry to Brockport, which resulted in the distribution of food to hundreds in our community multiple times a year. BHS National Honor Society advisers Tricia Arnold and Rebecca Barrett, along with the BHS chapter of NHS, were also recognized for their vital role in the set-up and distribution of food at each event.

The Foodlink Mobile Pantry provides food at no charge to people 18 and older, with no income or residency requirements. Foodlink staff and district volunteers unload, set-up and distribute food directly to families in attendance.

Brockport's Best awards are presented by the board of education to individuals or groups in recognition of outstanding achievement in Brockport Central School District. Nominations are accepted on a continual basis and must be submitted using the nomination form, which is posted on our website at bcs1.org. If you have questions regarding the award, please contact District Clerk Stephanie Williams at 637-1939 or stephanie.williams@bcs1.org.

You're invited!

The fourth annual faculty basketball game to benefit the Unified Sports Program will be held Tuesday, Feb. 26 at 7 p.m. in the Oliver Middle School lower gym.

Let's fill the gym as the elementary teachers take on the secondary level. Donations collected at the door and proceeds from concessions will go towards items such as awards and uniforms.

More than $2,000 was raised last year to benefit the Unified Sports Program.

The Unified Sports Program pairs students of all abilities together to train and compete in athletic games. The program extends far beyond sports by inspiring compassion, camaraderie, inclusion and lifelong memories for all involved.

Hill students raise nearly $600 during 'Stache for Cash fundraiser

Hill students collected donations to benefit the Wilmot Cancer Institute during their "Stache for Cash" fundraiser this past November. The fundraiser coincided with No Shave November, an initiative designed to raise cancer awareness.

The top earning classes from each grade, David Resseguie's fifth-grade class and Christopher Albrecht's fourth-grade class, presented a large check for $575 to a Wilmot representative on Dec. 18.

Way to go, Hill School!

Teacher wins money for schools devastated by CA wildfires

Fourth-grade teacher and 2018 NYS Teacher of the Year Christopher Albrecht was honored with 55 other teachers of year during the College Football Playoff national championship game in California on Jan. 7.

All teachers of the year had an opportunity to throw a football through an Eckrich (a prepared meat brand) target from 10 yards out to win $1,000 for Extra Yard for Teachers. The money would benefit schools in Butte County that were devastated from the California wildfires. Albrecht, the 40th teacher in line, was the first to make it through the target. He made a deal with the representative prior to throwing that if he backed up and successfully made the throw from 15 yards out, then Eckrich would increase the donation to $5,000. Not sure if it was luck or skill, but Albrecht successfully completed the throw through the target, winning $5,000 for Extra Yard for Teachers! Combined with other teachers of the year who made the target, $25,000 was won to benefit schools in Butte County. Way to go, Mr. Albrecht!

New geography bee champion at Oliver Middle School

A new geography bee champion was crowned at A.D. Oliver Middle School this winter. James Ramsay, an eighth-grader on Team Omega, surpassed 30 other contestants in sixth, seventh and eighth grades to earn the title of school geography bee champion on Dec. 5.

James Ramsay (geography bee champion), Richard Wiest (OMS social studies teacher), Jerrod Roberts (OMS assistant principal), Rebecca Tibbitts (OMS assistant principal)

The contest was sponsored by the National Geographic Society, who will eventually determine a national champion in geography knowledge. Ramsay will take a state qualifier test online to determine if he will qualify to attend the state championships in New York City this March. Once determined, state champions from across the country will compete this spring in Washington, D.C. to determine a national champion. The national champion will receive numerous awards including college funding. Good luck, James!

Paying tribute to Fannie Barrier Williams

Brockport Central School District partnered with community members to pay tribute to Fannie Barrier Williams in celebration of Martin Luther King Jr. Day.

Fannie Barrier Williams was an educator, political activist and women's rights advocate who was born in Brockport. She was the first black graduate of The College at Brockport in 1970 and a founding member of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. Throughout her life, she worked with many social activists including Booker T. Washington, Susan B. Anthony, Frederick Douglass and W.E.B. Du Bois. Williams continued to support women's rights until her death in 1944. She died in Brockport and is buried next to her sister in High Street Cemetery.

On Jan. 17, district students and staff joined community partners from The College at Brockport, First Baptist Church and Western Monroe Historical Society to honor the civil rights leader. Following a blessing by First Baptist Church Pastor Dan Brockway, BCSD students Sadie and Genevieve Contrera placed a wreath on her grave.

Holidays around the world

Sounds, sights and tastes from countries around the globe filled the Brockport High School LGI on Dec. 20 during the annual Holidays Around the World event.

Students in Stacy Hurley's class spent two months researching traditions associated with different holidays around the world, then created poster displays featuring their findings. They also constructed artifacts associated with their holidays and cooked up traditional foods to add to the authenticity.

The event began with a concert where students shared musical numbers corresponding to various holidays, then families, friends and staff in attendance had the opportunity to walk around to see the different posters and ask questions.

BHS teacher Stacy Hurley said the project encourages not only academics, but also communication, social and coping skills.

"Every year we strive for more independence during this project and they really rose to the occasion," said Hurley.

Kudos to Timmy Kemp, Ella Mohney, Ricky Noll, Jalen Prior and Nate Wall for an awesome, informative event!

Safe School Ambassadors aim to reduce bullying

Improving school climate was the focus of a special training presented to 46 Hill students on Nov. 30 and Dec. 3. The Safe School Ambassador Program teaches students how to identify conflict and intervention skills to prevent situations from escalating. There are three primary responsibilities in the job description: notice, think, act. Students participated in a variety of activities to gain a deeper understanding of types of conflict and the negative impact of bullying. Pictured here is the bruised apple activity in which students passed around apples and said mean things to them. Teachers then cut open the apples and showed students that they were bruised on the inside, demonstrating the negative impact of hurtful words.

Students from different social groups were nominated by teachers to participate in the program. This year 22 fifth-graders and 24 fourth-graders underwent the training. Brockport was the first district in New York State to implement the Safe School Ambassador program.

Author visit leaves BHS students humbled and inspired

You could hear a pin drop in the high school auditorium on Nov. 29 as a Democratic Republic of Congo refugee shared her story of resilience with high school students and staff. Sandra Uwiringiyimana wrote the book titled, "How Dare the Sun Rise: Memoirs of a War Child," a book that brought high school students and staff together in a reading project. In the book, Uwiringiyimana tells her story of surviving a massacre, immigrating to Rochester and turning adversity into activism.

Uwiringiyimana spent her childhood fleeing periodically during times of war. When she was 10, she survived a massacre that left her 6-year-old sister, aunt and many others dead. During her presentation to juniors and seniors, she recalled the night of the massacre through teary eyes, to which the students responded with an encouraging round of applause.

Uwiringiyimana focused her messaging on the power of kindness and understanding.

"The one thing I want people to take away is learning to look at the one next to you as an individual, as a human who experiences joy and pain and heartache," said Uwiringiyimana. "Getting to know people as humans and not through your preconceived notions...that is what changes the world."

Though Uwiringiyimana was not warmly welcomed into the U.S., she credits the kind individuals who took the time to get to know her for her success.

"I would not have known my voice mattered if it weren't for the people here in the Rochester community," said Uwiringiyimana.

Uwiringiyimana led two assemblies at the high school, one for freshmen and sophomores and one for juniors and seniors. She also spoke that evening at the Seymour Library during an event open to the community.
